Examiner says:

"A strong party in the North, now that the war has closed, advancing even beyond their pretensions as avowed until recently, claim that the war has established not only the freedom of the slaves, but the slavery of the freemen at the South. We are to be held not as c.tizens of a free country, but as the subjects of our own government, which is to enslave us. The President of the United States, happily for us, is at conflict with those who unblushingly avow this doctrine. So far as he maintains this contest, so far is it the duty of every friend of liberty (whether he resides north or south of the line which marked the recent contest) to sustain him.
